WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Monsoonal moisture continues to stream over northern California and will result in more cloud cover across the region today. Breaking cloud coverage will increase thunderstorm potential across eastern trinity county this afternoon and again tomorrow. Then, an upper level trough will approach early next week bringing cooler temperatures to northern California.

San Francisco Weather:

Mid and high level moisture will continue to decrease across the region as the upper winds become more southerly but some drizzle is possible along the coast as low clouds redevelop. Near seasonal temperatures and typical July weather conditions can be expected through the upcoming weekend as the marine influence returns.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Sacramento Weather:

Monsoon moisture will bring mostly cloudy skies and near to below normal temperatures through the end of the week. There is a chance of thunderstorms and showers over higher terrain through Saturday including the Sierra, Coastal, and Northern Mountains surrounding interior northern California.

Hanford Weather:

Afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms will be over the crest of the southern Sierra Nevada through the weekend. Temperatures will hold steady over the region through early next week, with a warm-up expected late next week..

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A weak upper low off the coast and onshore flow will keep below normal temperatures across the forecast area through the weekend, with night through morning low clouds and fog in most coastal and valley areas. A strengthening upper high in the south central states will expand westward, bringing a warming trend late in the weekend into next week, with above normal temperatures in most inland areas by Tuesday.

Extreme Southwestern California Including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

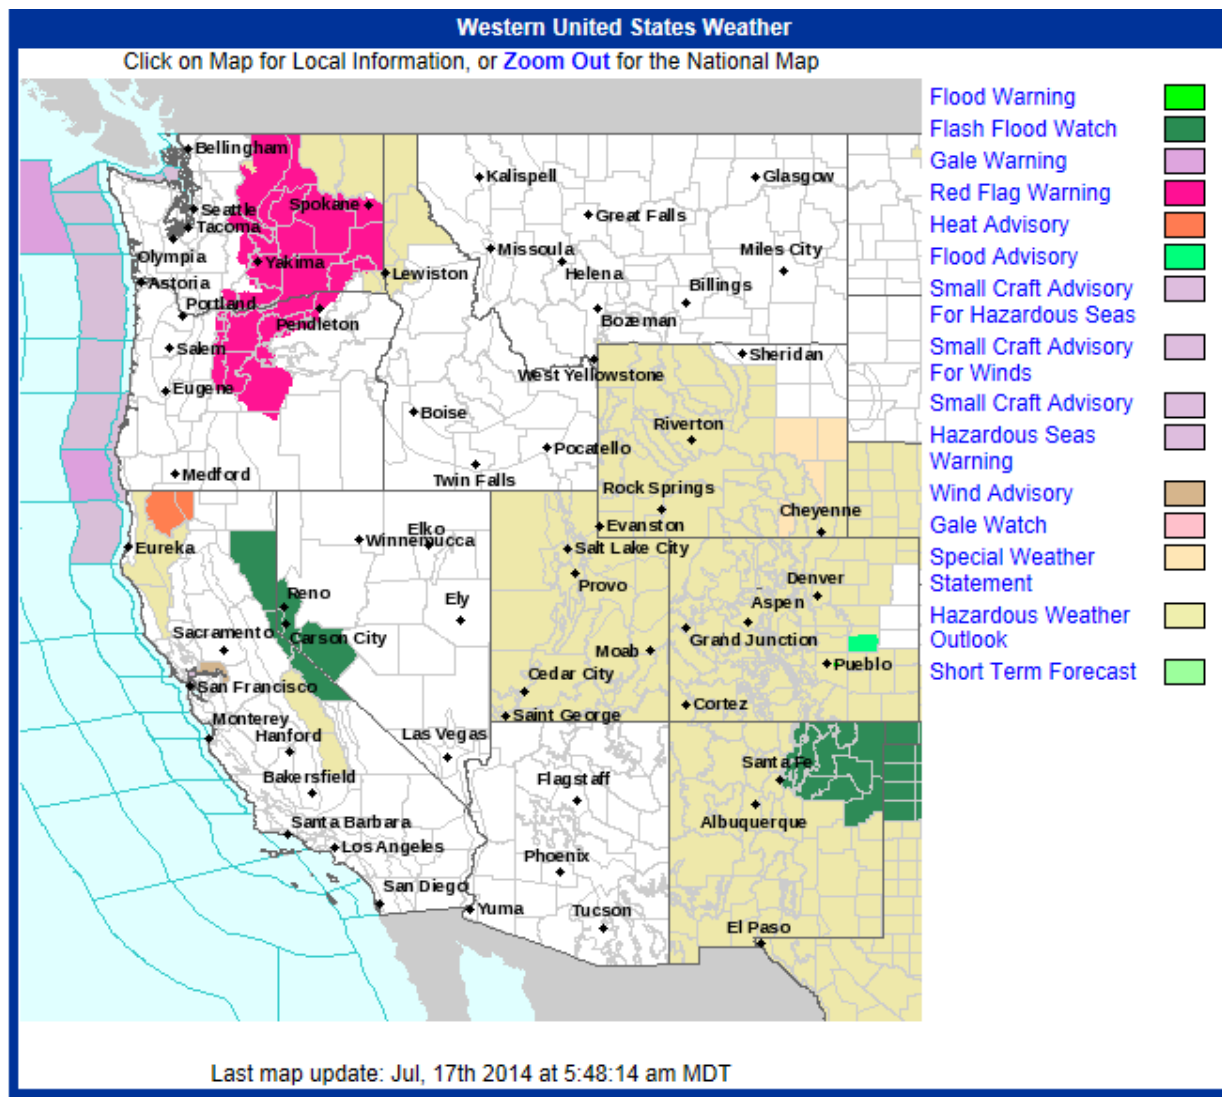

Southern California will remain situated between low pressure off the coast and high pressure to the east, with onshore flow and dry conditions prevailing through the weekend. The marine layer will stay relatively deep, pushing well into the valleys each night, with variable clearing each day along the coast. Daytime temperatures will remain below normal as well. High pressure will build back across the region by the middle of next week, with warmer weather.

Southeast California Weather:

Monsoon moisture will continue to thin today and remain limited through the weekend supporting isolated storm coverage, mostly confined to the higher terrain of eastern Arizona. Daytime temperatures will see little change through the weekend remaining just above seasonal normal. A better moisture profile returns to the forecast area early next week, bringing at least slight storm chances back to the lower deserts of Arizona. Strong high pressure is expected to build over the four corners at the same time, with the potential for a significant warming trend in temperatures.

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

On 7/8/14 the State Water Board will publicly release proposed water conservation requirements to reduce water waste across the state. These proposed emergency regulations include mandatory restrictions on water use, and will be considered by the Water Board on 7/15/14.

The Taskforce continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.

Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.

Open Burn Ban in effect across the state: Open burning is now prohibited on 31 million acres of land across the state, due to a burn ban that CAL FIRE has directed each of its unit chiefs to implement. This ban on open burning in state responsibility areas (outside of cities and towns) reduces wildfire danger amidst extremely dry conditions.
